CLAIMS REVOLT ON

Declares Voters Refuse to Swallow Ferguson

"The old line democrats of Texas are stampeding."

This was the comment of Dr. George C. Butte, republican candidate for governor of Texas, who arrived here today shortly before noon and at 2:30 opened the first annual fair in a program at the Pleasure Pier this afternoon.

Smoking a pipe, with his hat on, and walking about the room at his hotel as he hastily unpacked a traveling pack and took out a few sheets of notes from a brief case, the man who is giving the democratic party the greatest opposition since Texas was a state discussed his candidacy.

"Revolution in Texas?"

"Doctor, does it look like the old line democrats are coming from their hiding places and realizing a fight is on?" the candidate was asked.

Snapping a suitcase together, biting the stem of the pipe, the former dean of University of Texas law school answered with:

"They are literally scared to death. We have a revolution in Texas started and it is gaining adherents every day."

Reminded that Former Senator Chas. Culberson had recently come out with a statement asking all democrats to rally to the polls next general election, was cause for further comment from the candidate. "Yes, the old standpatters realize now they

Pleasure Pier Presents Colorful Spectacle, With Constant Stream of Autos and Pedestrians Adding to Throngs

Port Arthur this afternoon added a new institution to its permanent record.

The first annual fair, result of years of hoping and three months' actual planning, came into being at 2:30 when Dr. George C. Butte, candidate for governor, before a large enthusiastic crowd at the Pleasure Pier dance pavilion officially spoke the words which opened the five-day exposition.

Style Show To Be Wednesday Night

THE first big night event of the fair which promises to attract probably the largest evening crowd of the entire program will be the style show at 7:30, which will be staged in a specially built and lighted arena at the fair grounds.

The style show is the special work of the Retail Merchants' association. Fifteen of the loveliest young women in the city have been chosen as live models who will display a wealth of styles and designs of all patterns and types of gowns gathered by retail buyers at the eastern and Parisian markets.

Mrs. Fanny Sellers Elliott, designer, is in charge of the costume which promises to be the most varied and attractive ever seen here.

A beautiful arch stairway has been erected and the models will walk up this into a "peacock alley" decorated, lighted and designed to show off the apparel to best advantage.

Spotlight has been furnished by the National Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators Local 301, W. A. La Bosthe, business agent.

Exposition Buildings Cramped

Everything in its place, the four exhibition buildings crammed to overflowing with an array of displays which would credit an institution 10 years older, the big Dodson show mid-way with its 30 attractions ready for business, those who have made the fair possible declared themselves ready to offer the fruits of their labor to the public.

Holiday spirit was added to when the downtown sections were decorated with flags in front of the many buildings. Solid lines of the large flags floating with a moderate breeze, made an impressive and orderly decorative treat.

Weather is today perfect for the inauguration of Port Arthur's first annual fair. A cooling breeze, temperature not too hot nor cold. The moon rising high at night and creating sparkles which dance with kaleidoscopic variations against the pined yards of Lake Sabine presents a Venetian effect by night.

Butte Visits Refineries

Dr. George C. Butte, republican opponent of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, democratic nominee for governor of Texas, arrived in Port Arthur at 11 this morning and was escorted to the Plaza hotel where a reception committee of citizens and fair officials greeted him.

Dr. Butte was met at Beaumont this morning by a reception committee of Port Arthurians headed by Col. R. H. Dunn. The reception party motored from Beaumont to Port Arthur.

At 11:30 the reception committee escorted Dr. Butte, his son Woodfin who is accompanying his father on the campaign as manager, several staff correspondents of leading Texas newspapers, to the Gulf Refining company, where he made a short address to employees there at noon.

From the Gulf company the guest of honor was escorted to the Texas Company terminal where a luncheon attended by a number of company officials and citizens, was served. R. L. Drake was toastmaster at the luncheon.

8-Hour Statehouse Day

In his address to employees at the refineries, each of the three lasting about as many minutes, Dr. Butte stressed one plank in his platform specifically. This was regarding his statement made in all his addresses that he would give eight hours a day minimum work to the governor's office on a systematic basis.

"When the whistle blows in the morning and you shoulder your working instruments, pick up your lunches and start out to work, at Austin at the same time I will be rolling up my sleeves and preparing to give eight hours at least of hard work for you as your governor," he said.

From luncheon the guest party was brought to the fair ground, where the program was followed as announced.

Officials Speak Briefly

When the gates swung wide this afternoon big crowds were on hand to be among the first to enter. By 2:30 long lines of cars and hundreds of pedestrians were filling the thoroughfare.

Chairman Drake called the meeting to order at 2:15 and called on Rev. C. W. Culp, pastor of the First Baptist church, who led the invocation. F. E. Gifford, president of the fair association, stated the aims of the organization and explained the handicaps under which the officials had worked in making the initial offering. He reviewed the history of the fair and told of its problems which were met and overcome in its three months of existence. He urged Port Arthur people to give future exhibitions the co-operation extended this year's executive board.

Logan Praises Fair Boosters

Mayor J. P. Logan the next speaker, began his address with praise of those who had made the fair possible.

"In the old days people were more neighborly. Living even on farms our forefathers probably took more of a personal interest in each other's welfare than do we in this fast age where everybody is so busy with his own private affairs. I am glad Port Arthur will now, like other large cities, devote a certain period each year for the purpose of coming together, exchanging ideas, recounting the year's work and in general neighborliness. Let this year's fair

Confess Throwing Eggs

The case today grew out of rotten eggging of an outboard interurban on North Proctor street several nights ago, when a woman passenger was struck in the face by one of the missiles.

All of the boys pleaded guilty to the egg throwing incident.

Two of the boys pleaded guilty to stealing gasoline from an automobile, this being accomplished by means of a hose used as a siphon.

This is not the first time the interurban has been attacked by using eggs, bricks and other missiles, trainmen testified in court, declaring that this had been going on for months.

Negros also had been attacked by boys throwing rotten eggs, it was testified.

Parents of Several Present

Chief of Police Covington, assistant City Attorney Fred White, parents of many of the boys on trial and a cordon of policemen were present in the court room.

Each of the juveniles told his story to the court.

Probation Officer McGlachlin testified as to his efforts in bringing them under control at various times during the past two years. Chief Covington and Assistant City Attorney White questioned the boys closely.

The boys bore up apparently only mildly concerned until several mothers, tears streaming down their cheeks, interceded in their behalf with Judge Dyeus. Then, tears streaming down their cheeks, also, they broke down.

Mothers Intercede

"Your honor," one mother, her lips quivering, said, "I have always tried to teach my boy to be honorable and straightforward. He is good to me and I love him better than life itself and I don't want him to have to go to the reform school if there is a way to give him another chance."

This was in answer to an inquiry by Judge Dyeus as to how their sons treated them.

Scenes of pathos with mother love and penitent prodigal central figures were enacted in the court room, the youths accompanying their parents home when the case was ended.

Avoid Lane of Storm

Fresh to strong northerly cross winds and possibly showers will be encountered by the ZR-3 along her dash across the ocean to Lakehurst, N. J., today and tonight, the weather bureau advised the navy department today.

The zeppelin is now expected at Lakehurst, N. J., between 6 a. m. and 11 a. m. tomorrow. This estimate was based on the changed course of the ZR-3 which is now headed for New Foundland, whence it will swing down the coast to New Jersey. The change was made to avoid running into a storm.

The ZR-3 at 8 a. m. today was 1200 miles off New York, according to estimates of navy department officials.

Port Arthur Woman Sues Kin, Says Insanity Falsely Charged

Mrs. L. A. Bailey Charges Conspiracy, Asks $15,000 Damages for 24 Hours Imprisonment

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 14.—Alleging that she was held in the Port Arthur jail for 24 hours after a false lunacy charge had been sworn out against her, Mrs. L. A. Bailey filed suit in the district court here this morning for $15,000 damages.

The suit was directed against J. W. Richards, half brother of Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. J. W. Richards, and R. F. Ware, brother of Mrs. Bailey.

In her suit Mrs. Bailey alleged that on or about the first of September the defendants conspired together for the purpose of filing a complaint against her and having her convicted on a charge of insanity. A request was made to Justice of the Peace W. E. James to issue a warrant for her arrest and the complaint was signed by the defendants named in the suit.

The warrant was placed in the hands of the city police for execution and, according to the petition filed today, Mrs. Bailey was arrested at the home of her mother and taken to the Port Arthur jail. She declares she was held there for 24 hours and was released by a deputy sheriff on September 2 at 4 o'clock. She declares she was ill and suffering from a high fever and that she suffered greatly by being so incarcerated.

Mrs. Bailey alleges that no further action has been taken on the case and any prosecution abandoned. She declares they had no cause to believe she was insane and that the complaint was made without probable cause and that the defendants acted wilfully, wantonly and maliciously with the intention of injuring her. For the suffering she has endured on the alleged false charge against her, Mrs. Bailey asks for $5,000 actual and $10,000 exemplary damages.

TAX VALUES IN COUNTY BOOMED

Increase Seen as Rolls Are Completed

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 14.—County tax rolls were completed Monday by the assessors department and turned over to Miss Ada Lockhart, county tax collector. One copy of the assessments was also sent to Lon Smith, comptroller at Austin.

Taxable values for Jefferson county will total $103,373,934 for 1924. The taxable value for 1923 amounted to $192,736,223. The amount of taxes collected in 1923, however, will be slightly more than of the present year, since the tax rate has been lowered from $1.72 to $1.71. Tax collections this year will amount to $1,600,108 as against $1,601,453.15 for the year 1923.

Taxable values in the county would have been a great deal higher, but for decreases in production by the oil companies. On account of a low oil production, taxes paid by oil companies in the county dropped approximately two million dollars and the gains made in property would not offset this change.

The taxable values referred to does not include the navigation and drainage district taxes.

Fireman Dying After Horse On Track Ditches Train

SWEETWATER, Texas, Oct. 14.—Mox Welton, veteran engineer on the Texas and Pacific, is dead and his fireman, Frank Pratt, is said by local physicians to be dying as the toll of a wreck of the Sunshine Special at Sweetwater switch, five miles east of Stamper at 1 o'clock this morning. The train ran over a horse on the track, which caused the heavy locomotive to crash into a switch and into a string of empty box cars. The box cars, engine and tender were reduced to wreckage. Three day coaches left the track and what kept them from entering the ditch in a mass of wreckage is problematical. None of the passengers were injured. It will be several hours before the wreckage can be cleared.

have a fight on. Joe Bailey is taking the stump against me now. These leaders realize the people of Texas are stampeding. There is chaos in the ranks of the party leaders," he commented.

Says Principal Involved

"Of course I don't know. I feel like I am going to get votes from all factions and classes. This is not a campaign of class against class. It is the great majority of Texas people revolting against a political situation they refuse to stand for and lining together on a question of principles," he answered.

"What do you think your majority will be if you are elected next month?" was the next question asked.

"I will be glad to tell you exactly after the election. I am not the kind who deals in absurd calculations before the votes are in. I am confident of being elected by a substantial majority, though," Dr. Butte replied.

The interview lasted exactly three minutes. Having run up to his room but for a short time before being escorted to the refineries, the candidates had no time to sit down and discuss politics.

blunt nose due west after passing the Azores, eliminating the Bermuda from her route and was pushing her way through the air at a good speed with three engines. The others have been cut off to save fuel.

A slight accident gave the crew a few anxious moments when one of the gas cells was torn over the Azores but it was speedily repaired, Steele said.

The first of the messages read: "Wash Water Exhausted."

ZR-3 passed Azores this afternoon. Wonderful view of islands. Dropped bag of personal mail from crew by parachute. Rose to 5,000 feet and blew most down. One gas cell slightly torn in descending but immediately repaired without damage. Running with three engines for economy, making 48 knots air speed following light breeze and heading for Lakehurst.

"Since blowing valves gas cells are about 90 per cent full. Plenty of daylight inside hull. Light coming through after cover and through window near keel walk just below nose can where a fine view ahead may be had, but the keel corridor is a lonesome place."

"Wash water exhausted. Razors and tooth brushes having a real rest. Excellent dinner today: soup, boiled ham, string beans and pudding. Getting accustomed to routine; sleep during off watches. be a big one, let next year be bigger and let's make it our pride from year to year to see it grow and express the works of the people it represents," the mayor said in conclusion.

George Carter, member of the fair executive committee, and next speaker, gave to the women who have labored along side with the men in bringing the fair idea to fruition, great credit. "Where you have found men laboring and planning to make an annual fair possible, you have found many more women present with their suggestions, talents and energy. I do not hesitate to say without their co-operation there would be no occasion such as we hope to enjoy the next five days."

Praises Port Arthur
R. L. Murray, introducing the speaker of the occasion and guest of honor recounted the record made by the latter as a citizen, educator and lawyer. Referring to him as a man who had given his talents to his profession and had been the inspiration to many students as an instructor, Murray said Texas had no citizen of which it could be more proud.

Dr. Butte, in acknowledging his introduction, praised Port Arthur for its progressiveness in stepping into the ranks as one of the major exposition cities of the state.

"My few brief hours in your city has been an awakening to me both as to your size and the progressiveness of your most hospitable citizenship. A visit this noon to your vast industrial plants convinces me you are a city with a future and a present which speaks for itself."

Dr. Butte for about 10 minutes praised the efforts of the fair association and referred to the value such an institution would mean in a civic way. Following his reference to the fair, the speaker launched into his address similar to those which he has been making over the state in his campaign for governor.

Will See It Through
The speaker explained he was in mid-ocean en route to Texas from the International Lawyers' convention held in London, when he received a radio wireless telling of his nomination as governor.

"When this came to me in mid-ocean, I knew little of the political situation in Texas. It seemed to me then that my acceptance might be what some of my dearest friends who wired me when I landed in New York thought it would be, a futile protest and an empty gesture. Above the call of the committee that nominated me, I seem to hear the voice of the youth of Texas; I seem to hear again the whispers of the heroic souls that gave their lives at San Jacinto and to God that Texas might be free."

"I seemed to hear again Travis' call for reinforcements at the Alamo when he said, 'I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible and die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his honor and that of his country, victory or death.'"

Able men, Dr. Butte said, could have been picked to take up the fight as he saw it, but since he had entered he would see it through and go through on a basis of principle.

"The deciding factor in the election Nov. 4 will be the votes of those high-minded, patriotic democrats whose conscience will not allow them to cast a vote for a man whom they have reason to believe from past experience, will not only injure the state but again compromise the democratic party as well. Instead of being branded by the partisan press as the 'disgruntled' or 'bolting' element, they who would restore the health of the party and save the state from ruin, ought in truth be hailed as the best friends the democratic party had."

Finally found health in Kellogg's Bran after suffering long with constipation

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL Bran. Nothing but ALL Bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sirs:

I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could think of, and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem. I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran. Thanking you very kindly for this great cereal, I am,

Very respectfully,

Chester C. Patch,

541 Main St., Greenwood, Mass.

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestines. It rids them of the dangerous poisons that lead to other diseases. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious with milk or cream. You will like its nutlike flavor—so different from ordinary, tasteless bran. Sprinkle it over the cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Eat it in Kellogg's Bran muffins, griddle cakes and many other wonderful recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. It is sold by all grocers.

AGGIE SPIRIT FEATURES TALK

Guy Haltom Addresses Club At Banquet Here

"The old days at A. and M. and the fighting Aggie spirit" tingled anew in the veins of former Aggie-landers last night in Newport cafe, when Guy Haltom addressed members of the ex-students club in their regular banquet.

It was the "fighting Aggie spirit," Haltom pointed out, that carried many former-students of Texas A. and M. college on to success in after years, "and which is the mainstay of those just finishing the institution of learning."

Haltom's address, a feature of the occasion, was well-received. During the meeting, an entertainment committee was agreed upon, and will be appointed by President R. W. Hall in the near future to prepare programs for the club, while it was also voted to seek a special Pullman car from Port Arthur to the Turkey Day classic at Austin Thanksgiving.

Members of the club were urged to double the attendance at the next regular banquet, which will probably be held in Plaza hotel, and a communication from the Ex-Students' association urging co-operation in making the Texas Aggie Excy clubs of the state a success was read to that all persons who are either graduates of A. and M., or who have ever attended the school are eligible for membership in the club.

PEOPLE AVOID YOU IF YOU ARE PIMPLY

A boy or girl may have ever so perfect a face, neck and pose, but if even one little pimple, blotch, bump or red spot shows, it ruins their whole appearance. You know how true this is, because you just naturally avoid people whose appearance is not pleasing.

These things are no longer to be endured, however, because thousands of people are getting rid of the worst and most stubborn cases of such skin diseases easily and quickly by using Black and White Ointment, and Soap. It seems like magic to eczema, ring-worm, itch, "breaking out," etc.

Dealers everywhere are recommending Black and White Ointment, and Soap, now. They are economically priced in liberal size packages. The 25c size ointment contains three times as much as the liberal 25c size. —Adv.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY THE SABBATH WAS MADE FOR MAN AND NOT MAN FOR THE SABBATH.—MARK 2:27. THE POOR MAN'S DAY.—GRAHAME.

The Editorial Mind

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

MEN THE BEST COOKS
There seems to be little doubt that men are better cooks than women, and the question arises why is this so. Many answers have been given. One is that man cooks because he likes it and woman only likes it as a means to an end. Another is that he sacrifices nothing on the altar of economy, whereas economy is the stumbling block of a woman. Again, man is said by nature to be an epicure. This gives him an instinct for subtly blending flavors to tempt the palate. It is said that women accept cooking as an every day duty but men look upon it as a profession. Man is more exact whereas woman dislikes accuracy and works by rule of thumb. It is that man is more original and inventive, while woman merely imitates. Again it is said that cooking needs good health and men can stand, and walk about and endure heat for long hours better than women. One writer says that men have tradition behind them and a recognized status; their remuneration is good, they are allowed to concentrate, they have an unstinted labor and their extravagances are overlooked. One woman says that women are expected to produce a rich menu on a limited allowance, also to mind the baby, clean the house and answer the door bell while they are cooking. The best explanation is the men, when they cook, give their entire attention to the matter, while women are busy also with something else. (Copyright, 1924, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—He stood at the highest point in an upstate country. Trees and bushes had been touched with gold and crimson. Green pastures sparkled in the sun. Before him seven ranges of hills rolled away, one over the other, into infinity. He stood there, silent, enraptured, for quite a long moment and then turned to his companion. "Is that nature?" he asked. "Is what nature?" "All that," he answered, and made a vague gesture toward the vista before him. "What do you mean, is what nature?" his uncomprehending companion answered. "I mean—do things just grow that way? Or have the people who live here fixed up things like that?" Now, if all those questions had been asked facetiously there would have been little point to recording them here. But they were asked seriously. It was the first time that the inquisitive man had ever seen trees and other natural things growing any place except in the parks of New York City. This man is 30. He holds a respectable position in one of New York's banking institutions. He has had a fair education. His knowledge in some fields is unlimited. Yet he didn't know a pine from an oak, wheat from timothy, a hen from a rooster. He thought that all the lakes in the hills were artificial reservoirs dammed up by the country hotel keepers to create summer resorts. There is no exaggeration in any of this. There may not be many more inhabitants of New York City so colorfully ignorant of the wonders of life as this man, but there are thousands here who know less of natural things than a country boy of six. And those thousands think that a vast territory inhabited by primitive people, a territory without which the United States could very well be along. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

DIVORCES PREFER PLAIN SILVERWARE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 14. They aren't engraving the family silver any more. Guess why? Because a family name is no longer permanent. When grandma was a girl and even when father courted mother, marriage was looked upon something as permanent as that only death could destroy it. But— The bride of today isn't sure whether her new name will be in style next year. Divorce, elopement or any number of things may happen. "And it would be an embarrassing thing to go on using silver with George's initials on it." So she just leaves the wedding gift silver plain.

ELLIS COUNTY FAIR GIVEN MUCH PRAISE

Traveling representatives of large implement houses and nationally known cotton men were unanimous in their praise of the event.

SOME PRIZE PLAYERS IN PASSING POLITICAL SHOW

Brutus Brookhart of Iowa having demanded the removal of Dawes from the republican ticket, branded Coolidge as a puppet of Wall Street and defied the republican machine leaders to do their damndest. They did—in Iowa. He was declared a bolter by the state committee. Now there is a hedges to pay in the hawk-eye state and there is no telling what will happen in November. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska will be the next insurgent to be beheaded by the republican managers and Senator H. Johnson of California is to be gibbeted in the near future if he doesn't make a noise laudatory of the republican standard bearers. The Wisconsin Mussolini may be playing havoc with the democrats in the labor centers of the east and in New England but it is not a marker to what he is doing to the republican nominees in the republican strongholds of the west and the northwest. West of the Mississippi river unless the signs are misleading, La Follette is playing havoc with the republicans; east of the Mississippi river his sword is two edged and is striking down democrats as well as republicans. Wall Street is betting three and one-half to one on Coolidge. Wall Street is quoting odds of six to one against La Follette. Wall Street is betting five to one against the possibility of the election of a president being thrown into the house. Politicians who love the game and the interests who know how to play the game know how to manufacture public opinion. They are the most deadly propagandists in the political field of endeavor. Herbert Hoover is on the road hammering the Wisconsin Mussolini. Hoover says that government ownership of railroads would add forty billion dollars to the public debt, would mean higher rates to the public, multiplication of taxes, the addition of 2,700,000 employees to the federal service and poorer service to the public. There isn't a thing radical about Herbert Hoover this year. He is a reactionary of the most pronounced type as viewed by his critics and he is doing his best to keep the trunk of the elephant in the public privilege trough. According to New Yorkers it has been many years since the Wall Street district has experienced such inactivity in the matter of election betting as in the closing days of September and early days of October. All the betting commissions are well supplied with money to place on Coolidge at three or three and one-half to one but there is a dearth of Davis and La Follette money. In the Harding-Cox campaign of 1920 around October 1st the odds on Harding were four to one with the democrats holding out for six to one and the odds were six to one on election eve. In the closing weeks of September 1916 betting was two to one in favor of Hughes and against Wilson. At the beginning of October odds on Hughes dropped to ten to seven and in the third week of October the betting was five to four on Hughes and at the close of October all bets were made on an even money basis. In the campaign of 1912 with two republican parties and two republican standard bearers Woodrow Wilson was the favorite throughout the campaign. Just before election Wilson was quoted at five to one over Roosevelt and three to one over Taft. In 1908 the odds in September were two to one on Taft Against Bryan but late in October Taft was quoted at 3 to one and on election eve at seven to one. Now what will the harvest be in November?

STRATEGY

An army officer, high up, says: "The essence of strategy is surprise, which can be attained only through secrecy." That's true in warfare, though radio is making it increasingly difficult to preserve military secrets. In regular life, the essence of strategy is accomplishment, worth and reliability. Success is not mysterious. Ed Howe has a lot on his side when he claims that it's easier to succeed than to fail. Life, after all is warfare—the individual against the entire field.

FLOWER

Flowers that bloomed 90 million years ago are being reconstructed from fossils by Yale scientists. These experts, rummaging in an excavation meaningless to the untrained eye, are able to picture the long ago in most minute detail. Scientists are the greatest detectives. Sherlock Holmes goes in for science instead of crime detection. That's why he pursues villains only in fiction. The average crime detective gets at least half of his results by such unromantic things as double-crossings and "pipe-lines" into the underworld.

Quillen's Paragraphs

Relatives are people who wonder how you manage to get it. It is the right to vote that men fight for, not the task of voting. At this rate it will soon be a compliment to call a boy a "sissy." Mere femininity won't win a seat in the house if it won't in a street car. So live that you can run for office without whining about mud throwing. Common sense is that indefinite quality possessed by people who agree with you. You can judge a man by the company he keeps, or you can judge him by the wife that keeps him. "Are women qualified for places of authority?" queries an editor. Ask dad; he knows. Woman's waist line moves up and down; man's expands in a horizontal line only. There can be honesty in politics, of course. Frequently there is politics in honesty. And some men feel overworked because they take all day to handle a two-hour job. Nations trust God in time of war. Now if they will only trust one another in time of peace. Why another disarmament conference? Can't nations scrap their obsolete planes without that? It is easy to recognize Sunday. People have the tank filled instead of asking for five gallons. Progressive movements have nothing in common with the reactionary element except an appetite. True Americanism is the tolerance that permits all to interpret Americanism in their own way. If there is no other way to make the silver dollar popular, it may yet be necessary to denounce it. Let's not have too much talk of brass tacks. If representatives had less time there would be less talk. Correct this sentence: "I heard the story about her," said the gossip; but I hope it isn't true." (Protected by Associated Editors, Inc.)

Fluctuations in sales make difficult the complete utilization of equipment and time of employees. Sales force, equipment and space must be sufficient in any enterprise whether retailing or manufacturing to care for the greatest rush period or peak. The retailer must have clerks enough to handle the crowd during the rush hour of the day. The manufacturer must have equipment enough to handle the orders which accumulate during the Christmas season or whatever time the peak demand occurs. It thus happens that almost every enterprise fails to attain maximum efficiency because business is not constant in volume throughout a day or throughout a season. Expenses may be reduced if the peak is leveled and the corresponding valley filled. Methods of reducing peaks and increasing sales during slack periods depend upon the nature of the enterprise. Coal companies often utilize their equipment by handling ice. Carefully planned advertising has some times helped. Morning sales have been tried by some department stores. Tom Sims Says

Next thing you know everybody will be talking about Christmas. They have been saying jazz music was done for about three years, but it isn't played out yet. Lots of fellows stand around and make excuses while lots of other fellows are making a success. The railroad crossing kills almost as many as double crossing. You can't kiss a girl these days who doesn't know how. Statistics say there is a business revival, but you don't hear much shouting. If ignorance were bliss all the grouchies would be happy. The coal bin is a has-bin no longer, now it's a hasn't-bin. Open minds and open mouths don't go together. When a man starts out to make a fool of himself he always finds a crowd eager to help him. We must take our hats off to winter, and get new ones. Human nature is what makes a man mad when someone steals the same overcoat he did. BEGIN HERE TODAY Sir Charles Abingdon, engaged Paul Harley, criminal investigator, to solve for him the mystery of constant surveillance of Sir Charles. Sir Charles asks Paul to dine with him at the Abingdon home and shares with him the story of the mystery of "Fire-Tongue." Paul asks Sir Charles to explain to him the meaning of "Fire-Tongue." Brinn refuses to divulge his secret. Harley and Paul Abingdon, daughter of Sir Charles, are made prisoners in the home of Ormuz Khan, Oriental. Nicol Brinn rescues them and goes to tell the story of Fire Tongue to the police. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY This was not primarily to scale a peak of the Himalayas or even to visit Khatmandu, but to endeavor to obtain a glimpse of the Temple of Fire! "We had camped for the night in the shadow of one of some giant tors. The bearers were seated around their fire at some little distance from us, and Vadi and I were consulting respecting our route in the morning when I decided to take him into my confidence. Accordingly: "Vadi," I said, "I know for a positive fact that we are within ten miles of the secret Temple of Fire." "The sahib is wise," he replied. "So is Vadi," said I. "Therefore he knows how happy a thousand pounds of English money would make him. It is his in return for a night of the Temple." "A man may die for nothing, he returned, softly. "Why should the sahib pay a thousand pounds?" "Why should the sahib die?" said I. "It is forbidden for any to see the Temple, even from a distance. "But if no one ever knows that I have seen it?" "Fire-Tongue knows everything," he replied, and as he pronounced the name, he performed a curious salutation, touching his forehead with the tip of his tongue, and then laying his hand upon his brow, upon his lip, and upon his breast, at the same time bowing deeply. "This conversation took place, as I have already mentioned, in the shadow of one of those strange stone blocks which abounded here, and it was at this point that I received a warning which might have deterred many men, since it was inexplicable and strangely awesome. "My attention was drawn to the phenomenon by a sudden cessation of chatter among the bearers seated around their fire. I became aware that an absolute stillness had fallen, and in the eyes of the Brahmin who at facing me I saw a look of expectation, of wild fanaticism. "I jerked my head around, looking back over my shoulder, and what I saw I shall never forget, nor to this day have I been able to explain the means by which the illusion was produced. "Moving downward toward me, through the jungle darkness, slowly, venally, but at a height above the round of what I judged to be about fifteen feet, was a sort of torch or flambeau, visible because it was faintly luminous and surmounting it was a darting tongue of blue flame! "At the moment that I set my eyes upon this apparently supernatural spectacle, the bearers cried some word in Hindustani which I did not understand, rose and fled in a body. "I may say here that I never saw any of them again; although, considering that they took nothing with them, how they regained the nearest village is a mystery which I have never solved. "Gentlemen, I know the East as few of our fellow-citizens know it. I know something of the powers which are latent in some Orientals and active in others. That my Brahmin guide was a hypnotist and an illusionist, I have since thought. "For, even as the pattering foot-steps of the bearers grew faint in the distance, the fiery torch disappeared as if by magic, and a slither cord was about my throat! "As I began a desperate fight for life, I realized that, whatever else Vadi might be, he was certainly an expert thug. The jungle, the rocks, seemed to swim around me as I crashed to the ground and felt the Brahmin's knee in the small of my back. CHAPTER XXXI Story of the City of Fire (Continued) "How I managed to think of any defense against such an attack, and especially in the circumstances, was a matter I have often wondered about since. "You may observe that I have large hands. Their size and strength served me well on this occasion. At the moment that the rope tightened about my throat I reached up and grasped the Brahmin's left thumb. Desperation gave me additional strength and I snapped it like a stick of candy. "Just in the nick of time I felt the cord relax, and, although the veins in my head seemed to be bursting, I managed to get my fingers under that terrible rope. "Clutching the rope with my left hand, I groaned and lay still. The Brahmin slightly shifted his position, which was what I wanted him to do. The brief respite had been sufficient. As he moved, I managed to draw my nose up, very slightly, for he was a heavy man, but sufficiently to enable me to throw him off and roll over. "Then, gentlemen, I dealt with him as he had meant to deal with me; only I used my bare hands and made a job of it. "The fires burned lower and lower, but I made no attempt to replenish them; and because I sat there, silent, amidst the kinds of jungle creatures sent furiously out of the shadows, and watched me with their glittering eyes. "So the night passed, and dawn found me still sitting there, the dead end, I dressed myself in Vadi's clothes, and, being very tanned at this time, I think I made a fairly creditable native. "Faintly throughout the night, above the other sounds of the jungle, I had heard that of distant falling water. Now, an informant at Nagpur, in speaking to me of the secret temple, had used the words: "Whoever would see the fire must quit air and pass through water." "This mysterious formula he had firmly declined to translate into comprehensible English; but during my journey I had been considering it from every angle, and I had recently come to the conclusion that the entrance to this mysterious place was in some way concealed by water. "And now, gentlemen, I must relate a discovery which I had made in the act of removing Vadi's clothing. Upon his right forearm was branded a mark resembling the apparition which I had witnessed in the night, namely, a little torch, or flambeau, surmounted by a tongue of fire. "The plateau upon which 'stood was one of a series of giant steps, and on the west was a sheer descent to a dense jungle, where banks of rotten vegetation, sun-dried upon the top, lay heaped about the tree stems. "Dragging the heavy body of Vadi to the brink of this precipice, I toppled it over, swaying dizzily as I watched it crash down into the poisonous undergrowth two hundred feet below. "I made a rough cache, where I stored the bulk of my provisions; and, selecting only such articles as I thought necessary for my purpose, I set out again northward, guided by the sound of falling water. "At midday the heat grew so great that a halt became imperative. The path was still clearly discernible; and in a little cave beside it, which afforded grateful shelter from the merciless rays of the sun, I unfurled my bundle and prepared to take a frugal lunch. "I was so employed, gentlemen, when I heard the sound of approaching footsteps on the path behind me—the path which I had recently traversed. "Hastily concealing my bundle, I slipped into some dense undergrowth by the entrance to the cave, and crouched there, waiting and watching. I had not waited very long before a yellow-robed mendicant passed by, carrying a bundle not unlike my own, whereby I concluded that he had come some distance. "I gave him half an hour's start and then resumed my march. If he could travel beneath a noonday sun, so could I. "In this fashion I presently came out upon a larger and higher plateau, carpeted with a uniform, stunted undergrowth, and extending, as flat as a table, to the very edge of a sheer precipice, which rose from it to a height of three or four hundred feet—gnarled, naked rock, showing no vestige of vegetation. "By this time the sound of falling water had become very loud, and as I emerged from the gorge through which the path ran on to this plateau, I saw, on the further side of this tableland, the yellow robe of the mendicant. He was walking straight for the face of the precipice, and straight for the spot at which, from a fissure in the rock, a little stream leapt out, to fall sheerly ten or fifteen feet into a winding channel, along which it bubbled away westward, doubtless to form a greater waterfall beyond. "The mendicant was fully half a mile away from me, but in that clear tropical air was plainly visible; and, fearing that he might look around, I stepped back into the comparative shadow of the gorge and watched. "Gentlemen, I saw a strange thing. Placing his bundle upon his head, he walked squarely into the face of the waterfall and disappeared!" CHAPTER XXXII Story of the City of Fire (Continued) "Quitting air, must pass through water." The meaning of those words became apparent enough. I stood at the foot of the waterfall, looking up at the fissure from which it issued. "Although the fact had been most artistically disguised, I could not doubt that this fissure was artificial. "A great deal of mist arose from it. But I could see that, beyond a ducking, I had little to fear; and, stepping down into the bed of the little stream, which frothed and bubbled pleasantly about my bare legs, I set my bundle on my head as the mendicant had done, and plunged through the waterfall, into a place of delicious coolness. DAWES SEEKS 13 VOTES IN KY. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14.—Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, opened his campaign for Kentucky's 13 electoral votes today. Dawes arrived at Louisville at 9:15 this morning. Tomorrow Dawes will go to Lexington on his special train, stopping for speeches at Shelbyville and Frankfort. From Lexington he will go to Covington, thence into Ohio. EGYPTIANS A OUSED BY BRITISH STAND CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 14.—Indignation is intense throughout Egypt as a result of the breaking off of negotiations between this country and Great Britain to settle disputed problems, including control of the Suez Canal, which Egypt proposed to place under control of the League of Nations. Premier Zaghoul is turning here from London following his rupture with Prime Minister MacDonald. Velvet tunics are very much liked with narrow skirts of satin or dull crepe.

The Pleated Panel Permits A Graceful Freedom to The Otherwise Plain Silhouette

THERE is no visible sign of long skirts returning in the fall. Skirts are growing shorter if anything. Practically every woman seen on the streets are wearing skirts considerably shorter than last season.

This same shortness is found in sleeves in a great many of the frocks, in spite of the fact that most of the leading designers have been making their fall gowns with long sleeves, either tight-fitting or loose with a tight cuff. Women who have known the comfort of short sleeves refuse to accept the uncomfortable long sleeves, either for street wear or dress wear.

Many of the best dressed women are wearing new fall frocks with sleeves which are mere shoulder caps or sleeves which extend between the shoulder and the elbow and with these short-sleeved frocks they are wearing gloves which extend almost to the elbow.

Generally the fall frock has some sort of a short cape. Many of them have the new five-eighths length coats which match the frock. These ensemble suits are very popular just now and will be worn until the weather demands a heavier coat.

There is something particularly graceful, soft and feminine about an afternoon frock of brown crepe, whose wide pleated panel, while preserving the straight and slender silhouette prescribed by fashion, still gives a rare and welcome freedom of movement. The back of the dress of course is perfectly plain, and gives the effect of a straight narrow coat opening over the panel.

The wide soft belt lying in front is a continuation of the back, which is unbroken by any restraining line. In this loosely knotted belt we may see a development of the scarf idea and in fact such scarfs tied loosely around the hips are seen with good effects on the straight chemise type of evening dress. A repetition of this idea is seen in the band of crepe at the wrist and confining the rather full sleeves.

A dress like this is one of those charmingly adaptable garments which are as much at home on the morning shopping excursion as on the afternoon visit. It would be equally appropriate in a number of fashionable shades but the rust or wood tones favored by Paris are particularly good for a frock of this simple type.

Crepe continues to be very popular, according to Henri Creange, Cheney fashion authority. A number of new weaves have been introduced this fall. Among them a new flat crepe of the cashmere family, with a mat or dull finish especially desirable for the street. Then there are the lovely lighter weight crepes. Among the new varieties is a crepe roman with a new soft finish, called Crepe Medici, and Crepe Yvette, a still lighter weight crepe of the same family.

HAWAII GIVES $25,000 FOR GREEK REFUGEES

HONOLULU, Oct. 14.—Under the leadership of Gov. Raymond C. Brown, the island of Hawaii has decided to act as a Good Samaritan in Bible lands by sending a donation of $25,000 for the Greek refugees through Near East relief. A proclamation issued by Governor Brown says: "America's work in the Near East is symbol, not of the political and commercial America, but of the idealistic and humanitarian America, which in the scales of the future, this is the America of which we and our children shall be proud to have some part in it."

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO MRS. SALLY ATHON, CONTINUED

In addition to the sentimental side of the proposition, my dear, Mr. Hamilton's request opens up to me the most ambitious opportunity I probably would ever have offered me—and when opportunity knocks at the door one must surely open. The very thought of working upward and upward to the success which I shall try to make gives me a stupendous thrill.

In this you can fully sympathize with me, for you and I have thrived together in the putting over of many smaller enterprises, and I hope you will have the same feeling of great enthusiasm over this new business that I have. I shall of course expect you to come over here with me. Indeed, I would hardly know how to do the things I want to without your help.

You will have entire charge of the advertising and publicity end of the plant, and when my salary commences, your salary will automatically be put at fifteen thousand dollars a year.

I shall probably stay here until all is over. There will be much to be arranged, but I know my business at home is in good hands.

You please read as much of this letter as you care to to Mr. Bullock when you hand him the enclosed letter of resignation.

Sincerely,
JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

Letter From John Alden Prescott to President Bullock of the Acme Advertising Co.

My Dear Mr. Bullock: It is probable that this letter of resignation will be quite as much of a surprise to you as it was to me, but I find the affairs of my father-in-law in such shape at the immediate prospect of his death, that I have accepted the request that I become sole executor to his will and manager of the steel plant in his stead.

You can readily see that even if this were not a special opportunity for me, it would be an imperative duty.

Will you let me say that in the years we have been together I have learned from you the most upright and splendid of business methods, and if I do amount to anything in my new position, it will be because of your fine example.

I cannot tell just when I will be back, as Mr. Hamilton seems to depend upon me greatly, and he feels there is much to be decided before he passes on.

His attitude in this inevitable situation is one of great interest to me. If, when the time comes that I shall lay down this earthly life, I shall face the great unknown with the same brave equanimity as does my wife's father, I shall feel my life has not been spent in vain.

Mrs. Athon will give you all the details, and she will also close up the business in such a way that it can easily be turned over to another. I feel that in the future you can get along much better without me than I can without you, but just now this is the duty that lies nearest, and as such it must be done.

Sincerely,
JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

H. R. H. DELAYS TRIP TO DANCE

Saddle, Cycle Club of Chicago Haunts Him

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Unable to resist the lure of the dance, the Prince of Wales delayed his departure from Chicago for Detroit three hours, pulling out of here at 3:30 a. m. today. The train is due in Detroit at noon.

The original plans called for departure shortly after midnight, but at that hour the dancing at the Saddle and Cycle club, most exclusive in Chicago, was at its height, and H. R. H. was loath to go.

He was grating with some of the most beautiful flappers and young matrons in the city and when the hour of departure arrived, David Windsor said he would not leave off for anything and the dancing went on until the proverbial dawn.

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down and had pains in my side and back, sometimes I couldn't hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-months-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."

—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIEDERHOF, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minnesota.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Lamp Insurance

Running a wire from a ceiling fixture to a floor or table lamp is likely to do two things. It may give an untidy appearance to the room that should be the most attractive in the home. It is usually in the way, and likely to result in breaking the lamp. Convenience outlets will eliminate both of these troubles.

HOW TO BUILD YOUR HOME WALLS RIGHT

By the Architects Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Outside walls of solid masonry are sometimes built with air spaces in them as in the tile wall. Or the solid brick wall may have these spaces included. There are various ways to do this so that cold and moisture will not penetrate. When these air-spaces do not exist in the wall itself, it is necessary for us to devise an air space between the plaster and the wall. We do this by putting strips against the masonry and nailing the lath to these. Plaster is then applied. Such a wall will be warm and dry. If it is built of good materials and good workmen are employed, it will last a long time and will not give you any trouble. Depreciation will be low.

Building a Masonry Wall
Think of brick and tile walls as a multitude of small blocks piled one upon the other. If the blocks overlap each other properly you have greater strength. Bonding is the name we give to this overlapping. It must go back into the wall as well as along the face of it. That is one of the first principles of masonry wall building. If the mason does not forget that the square and plumb are his important instruments you will have another principle well observed, and then if the blocks are cemented together with a mortar generously made and skillfully applied you will have durability and strength. But one thing more. The block itself what about that? A well burned clay unit, to it tile or brick, is something like a mass of impure glass. It has temper as far from Damascus steel is from pot metal. The better the temper the stronger it will be.

We have come a long way in the building of walls since the cave man first learned to daub around reeds and the branches of trees. He built a temporary wall. When it rained it probably did not trouble him much to have a thin trickle of mud insinuating itself down his spinal column. Tight walls and roof did not mean much to him. Since that day we have learned how to build many kinds of walls—stone, brick, wood, tile, concrete—and we have learned that every one of them must be built with understanding to get the protection our dollars are intended to buy. It is easy to think of a stone wall as the strongest wall that can be built, but this is not necessarily true. Everything depends on the stone and the workmanship, just as it does with other materials used in wall building.

This is the last of three articles appearing in this column on "How to Build Walls."

HELP FOR THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BUILD

EFFLORESCENCE, ITS CAUSE AND BEST REMEDIES

By the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Spring rains may bring out on walls of stone, brick or concrete a whitish, crystalline deposit like hoarfrost. This is efflorescence.

The action which causes efflorescence is water from rain or drainage off window sills or eaves, soaks into the masonry walls and dissolves some of the soluble salts either of the mortar or the masonry material itself. After the rain has ceased, the water is drawn to the surface and evaporates, leaving the dissolved salts in the form of whitish crystals on the wall.

Where the Water Soaks In

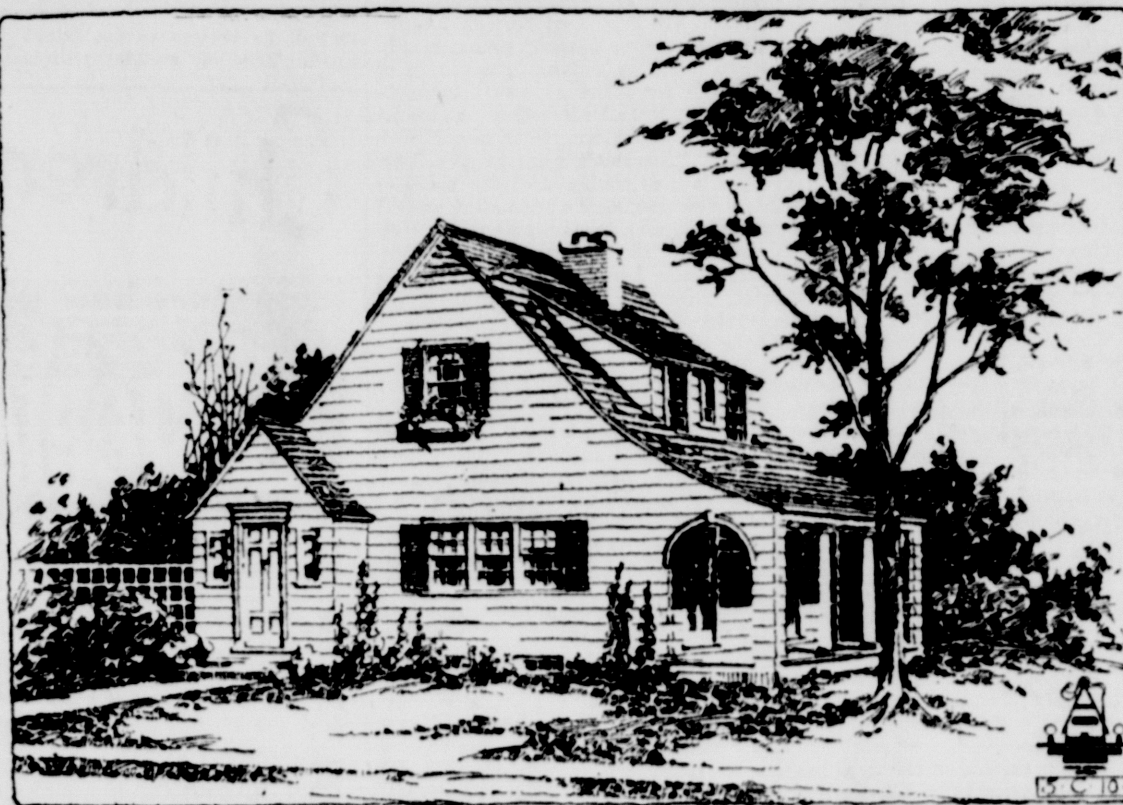

It will be noticed that the presence of efflorescence is most common under window sills, roof eaves, and other points where there is the greatest amount of water to soak into the wall.

The question then presents itself—Why doesn't the white deposit dissolve and wash off in the next rain? The reason is that upon exposure to the air these salts change their nature, absorbing carbon dioxide from the air and becoming carbonates, and hence largely insoluble in water.

From the explanation of the action of efflorescence, it will be apparent that the presence or absence of efflorescence is mainly due to local conditions such as the amount of absorption of the masonry material, the degree of exposure to rainwater, drippings and drainage, rather than to any factor inherent in the mortar or masonry material.

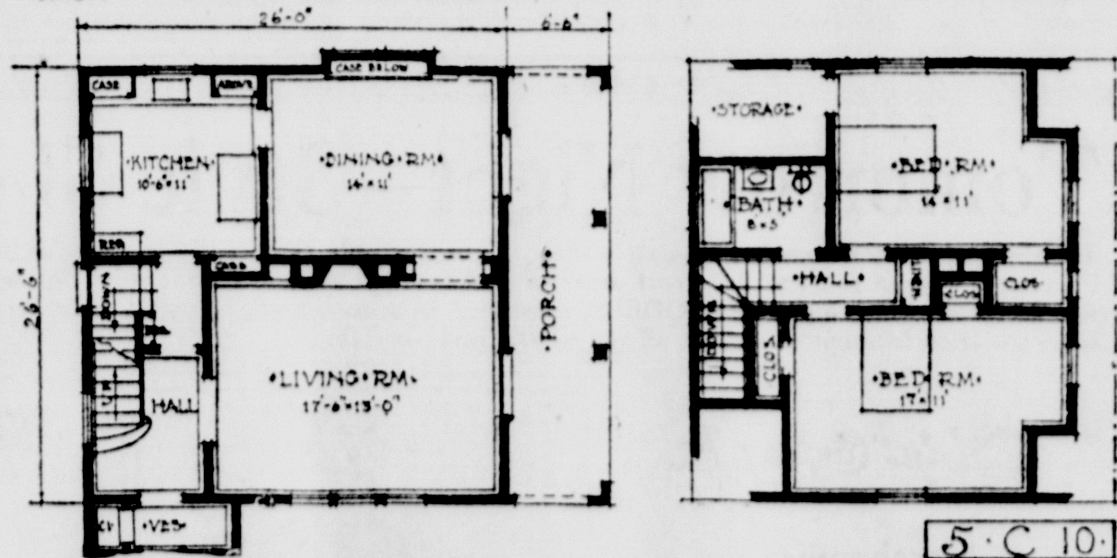

For efflorescence already existent, the only remedies are brushing with a stiff fiber brush or wire brush, or the removal by scrubbing with an acid wash consisting of one part of commercial muriatic acid and from 4 to 10 parts of water, depending upon the amount of efflorescence present. After the white deposit is removed with the acid wash, the acid is thoroughly rinsed off. The deposits may recur and require additional acid washes, but the amount of deposit should be less each time, due to the dissolving out of all the soluble salts, and hence the deposit should disappear after a time.

WHAT YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW ABOUT BUILDING

Questions addressed to the paper will be answered by the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., controlled by the American Institute of Architects and endorsed by the department of commerce, United States government. Inclose self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Q—What is the cause of rust running down the kitchen wall from the hole where the vent pipe from the gas range comes through the plaster?

A—This is caused by the warm air from the gas range coming into contact with the cold wall of the pipe which condenses the moisture from this warm air. The difficulty can be overcome if a drip is run from the bend of the pipe so that the water of condensation drips onto the basement floor. It is very difficult to overcome this condition in an old house without unreasonable expense.

Q—Is it safe to build an eight inch brick wall to a height of 10 or 12 feet?

A—An eight inch brick wall laid of good bricks and in good mortar is a substantial wall in the height you mention.

Poverty Weighs Worth

BY CYNTHIA GREY

ARABELLE had been wholly without any sort of obligations before the crash came which swept away almost all of her father's fortune.

The blow reduced her once proud and parasitical state into a helpmate about the house.

There were dishes to be washed and other chores to be done.

And it fell to Arabelle's lot to do them.

At first she rebelled under the unexpected responsibilities.

But there was something fine in Arabelle's nature, and, after a soul-searching meditation, she resolved to accept her lot.

INTROSPECTION and finding herself was very good so far as it helped serve the physical distress to which the family had been leveled.

But it was to aid Arabelle even more in finding her heart—a thing which she knew little about while playing the role of pampered ingenu and looking with mere "tolerance" on Jim.

The latter was a chap of 25, almost six years Arabelle's senior, who worshiped her from a distance, and was so blindly in love with his lady that he could see nothing in her condescension to him but favor.

And Jim probably would have eaten his heart out had things continued on their regular course with Arabelle still ensconced in her ease.

JIM, however, was of different stripe and cloth.

The pedestal upon which he had erected his idol did not shatter in the crash.

Instead, it seemed, she had been brought closer to him.

Now he found it easier to talk to Arabelle. And, strange to say, she admitted to herself that Jim, after all, was quite interesting himself.

Jim kept up his calls and the logical assumption of the family was that the two would be married before long.

Then Arabelle's father died.

The blow put an end to whatever hopes she might have had to get back into the brownstone front and escape the penury of her lot.

She took the shock with becoming philosophy.

AFTER a fashion she seemed contented with the niche fate had carved out for her.

A bit of money, just sufficient to keep her and her mother above actual want, came in regularly every month from some investments salvaged from the wreck.

But, down in her heart, Arabelle knew that she yearned for a return to the old life.

She and Jim would go back to it some day, she promised herself.

AN aunt, who had been estranged from the family for years, softened at news of her brother's passing.

The aunt was rich and offered to take Arabelle and raise her as her own daughter.

The news came to gladden and dismay the girl.

Jim's face, too, fell when he heard about it.

"I'm glad that the chance has come to you," he said. "I will not urge you to refuse."

"But, Arabelle, my dear girl, though I love you dearly, if you choose between us and resume your old life, it means that we must part."

"I have not the means of keeping pace with your aunt's set."

"Maybe, in years to come, the opportunity will be mine."

"But now all I can do is work and build."

"You must realize the impossibility of the situation."

WEALTH or love.

It was the old problem and Arabelle had to select one or the other, although both were dear to her heart.

Pleasure records that she took Jim in the end, although it was a hard struggle and cost several sleepless nights.

Luxury's taint had been seared from her soul.

Arabelle had found true happiness.

THE END

Take a tip from Vampy Alice Terry, Judge Day urges wives, and keep hubby interested

Although Pauline Frederick is divorced, Judge Day declares her scenes like this prevent others

STARS of the silver screen are unconsciously atoning for their sometimes-too-lex respect for the sanctity of marriage. The same actors and actresses who are said to hold marriage and divorce lightly are being used to prevent divorces by District Judge L. B. Day of Omaha, Neb.

Judge Day has devoted great efforts to reuniting couples ever since he went on the domestic relations bench a year and a half ago.

Since that time he has averaged one reconciliation a day.

The movies have been his greatest aid, he says.

Automobiles come second on the list, providing there is a bright moon!

REAWAKEN LOVE

Judge Day believes the movies are potent because they so frequently show the tragedy of separation and because by their nature they reawaken the tender sympathies with the man and wife who are planning divorce.

When a couple plan a divorce they are usually at a high pitch of emotion. Real or fancied wrongs have stirred slumbering urges.

The soothing influence of the softly lighted theater, melody of orchestra unbroken by human voices, absence of irritating influences, combine to smooth away the troubles.

Upon this fertile condition of the mind the lesson of the movie is projected.

Almost all movies are altruistic in their moral. Their subject matter is frequently marriage and divorce. The minds of the disagreeing husband and wife usually readily accept the philosophy of the screen and drop their own divorce.

SEE THEMSELVES

A woman who saw one film saw herself as the too-good wife of the film, driving her husband to the joy and laughter of others. And the husband who had been seeking the joy and laughter of others saw himself pursuing the will-o'-the-wisp of happiness.

One movie, emphasizing the love of a couple that lasted through years of sorrow, was declared to be the best for his purposes by Judge Day.

Another movie preached a sermon against divorce, although the heroine, Pauline Frederick, is herself a divorcee. The hero, Lou Tellegen, former husband of Geraldine Ferrar, has his court remembrances, too.

They showed in their motion picture that divorce does not always bring happiness. Both principals divorced, remarried, and then longed for their first love.

This movie had the desired effect upon a number of couples who have since dropped their divorce complaint.

Even the vamp, man about town, and roughhouse plots help to restore compatibility.

"They show a man, or his wife, that the other fellow might be a good deal worse," explains Judge Day.

And so, when a case comes before him in which he believes there is some chance for a reconciliation, this 35-year-old judge sends first for one, then for the other—and then for both of them.

He tells his best jokes—sometimes it takes a lot of them—and when he gets them to break the ice by laughing, he suggests, nay, orders them to go to a movie together.

DISMISSES 384 SUITS

"The battle is half won," he explained, "when folks laugh. A good picture has a wonderful effect after that."

Judge Day in 15 months, ending with an official check, granted 1370 divorce decrees and dismissed 384 suits for divorce because litigants had patched up their troubles.

Since then he has signed 423 decrees. And eighteen of the number, after obtaining their divorces, asked to have them set aside. They had decided to try it over again.

Reuniting folks isn't always a matter of movies.

Sometimes it means weeks and weeks of actual work, perhaps as many as twenty interviews.

"The mediator," said Judge Day,

"must get each party alone and point out where he or she is in the wrong. Then he must get at the real trouble. Most folks testify of the effect rather than cause of their domestic difficulties."

MUST UNDERSTAND

"They must be made to realize that the thing that started affairs going wrong is trivial and silly as compared to the real things in life."

But movies are his trump card. "Pick out a photoplay with plenty of love scenes and heart throbs," he grinned, "and good-night divorce suit!"

FATE IN SCALES

BY EUGENIA WALLACE
Leader in Professional and Business Women's Clubs Movement

WHEN the freedom of business opportunity was granted to women she vaulted into the saddle, like Leacock's hero, "and rode away in every direction."

Now behold her! Settled quietly into that freedom and doing practically every type of work, a real asset in the business world.

"But what of this new life after all?" women themselves are beginning to ask.

"Is it progress or merely change? Have we won a big new freedom or have we merely shifted the scene of action, still doing the small jobs and filling the service positions while men think and plan and forge ahead?"

It is too soon to tell. We can only watch the general trend and speculate.

It can be progress only if they are actuated by purpose, not mere desire for adventure or a career.

As for joy, see the high school and college girls who come trooping into the business world! No watchful waiting for them, but keen zest for the job they are to tackle. If the job is the right one their joy will last, but if they have drifted into the wrong work, if they yearn for art or domestic life and are chained to a desk instead, they will contribute little and gain little that is worth while.

For that reason the girl who hopes to do her bit toward making this "the best of all possible worlds," should consult a vocational adviser and prepare for work that is her very own.

FASHION'S LIMITATIONS DON'T STOP PARIS MODISTES

Even though lines refuse to change much and waists won't go back to normal and materials remain about the same, Paris is able to create new effects daily. Here are some of her latest whims. Perhaps the most stunning is the Hula Hula effect that was a sensation at the French races. It is a scanty, one-piece affair of white crepe de chine with an overskirt and detachable collar of ostrich plumes. The printed silk costume uses wide bands of clipped maribou to give an unusual skirt effect. Both of these costumes show the tendency to use fur and feathers as they were never used before.

A return to the picture frock of years ago is seen in the black organdie frock with its wide bands of black lace and the fichu that crosses so demurely across the front. The scarf of black net, edged with black lace, gives a further touch of femininity that makes the whole costume so distinctive. A skirt composed entirely of silk fringe, joined to a top of heavy white crepe, is an effective costume that is very narrow about the feet and clings to the straight silhouette without any equivocation. With the exception of the picture frock, which is a law unto itself, you will notice that skirts are short, and the tendency is for them to become shorter instead of longer.

Landis Says Probe Is To Be Continued Indefinitely

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Investigation into the New York Giant baseball scandal will be continued indefinitely.

Commissioner Landis, head of baseball, before leaving for Chicago last night said most of his time after the close of the world's series had been taken up with the distribution of $1,000,000 among the various shareholders. He did not comment on the rumor heard during the series that he was going to withhold the Giant players' share of the money but it is assumed that Cozy Dolan and Jimmy O'Connell were the only Giant players who did not get their pay.

"The business of sending out the players' share has been cleaned up practically," Landis said. "Investigation into the scandal is still under way. As I said before the case will not be closed. So far I have done everything that could be done, although it may seem incomplete to many people. I won't say whether I am satisfied as far as I have gone already. The future will tell that."

In addition to the Dolan-O'Connell attempt to bribe Heine Sand, Landis also may investigate stories of Red Dooin and Lou Criger, former players, who said Giant players had offered them bribes. There also are charges of Ban Johnson, president of the American League, that other players are involved and the accusation of Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, that his players were tampered with.

Pirates Training Hard for First Encounter in City

PRACTICALLY fully two hours a day, and with the squad showing up in good form, the Port Arthur Pirates are this week going through some hard training tactics in preparation for their first game of the season, which will probably be played here Friday.

Either Sour Lake Independents, or the South Park Collegians will oppose the Pirates. It is understood, tentative arrangements calling for games with these clubs.

About 15 men have answered the call for the club, but today another call will be sounded, urging all available material to report to Franklin field this afternoon at 5 o'clock for training. Any former high school or college player is eligible for the Pirate squad.

New uniforms and equipment are to be issued the lineup this week.

Flag Won Without
Single Lefthander

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 14.—For the first time in 10 years Waterbury won the baseball championship of the Eastern league, and the veteran "Kittie" Bransfield, well known in Pittsburg as a first baseman, turned the trick.

Waterbury's triumph was a shock to the form followers. Bransfield won with an ordinary aggregation of ball players, and one that was not especially lucky in escaping injuries.

An unusual angle to the Waterbury victory was that it was achieved without the aid of a single left-handed pitcher. It is one of the traditions of baseball that no club ever won a pennant without one lefthander. But Bransfield's five righthanders proved traditions aren't always sacred.

The star of the staff was Andy Rush, a recruit from the Muskogee club in the Southwestern league, who won 22 and lost 10.

Chicago Longs For Quarter Like "Eck"

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—University of Chicago is seeking a real first-class quarterback. Give the Maroons a capable signal caller and they are bound to get somewhere this fall.

Chicago has had some splendid pilots down through the years. The best of them all, no doubt, was Walter Eckersall. "Eckie" was a bright star in all departments of the game. He could run, punt, and as a field goal kicker had few, if any, equals. Then there were also Walter Steffen and Pete Russell, as well as others.

Chicago hasn't had a first class quarter since Milton Romney back in 1921. Romney was a brainy general. He was quick to diagnose an opponent's weakness—and just as quick to take advantage of it. It was Romney who enabled the Maroons to beat Princeton three years ago on the Orange and Black field.

NEW FOOTBALL RULE
INTERESTING TO WATCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—In watching a few early season football practices the result of the newest rule—that against the use of any sort of artificial tee for place-kicking—has been interesting.

The interpretation of the rule to permit a player to hold the ball for the kicker on the kick-off will help things there. But a side which has a drop kicker and a placement kicker will be rather out of luck on rainy days. With no mound to help out of the mud, the place kicker will have quite a task, and drop kicking is a stunt on wet days.

BRITISH SHIP
AFTER ASPHALT

Nassa Halts at Gulf Docks
For Bunker Fuel

Loaded out at the Texas Company's Port Arthur terminals, the British steamship Artemisia went up to the Port Neches terminals Monday afternoon to complete loading with barreled asphalt. The Texas Company tanker, which arrived Sunday night from Tampico, completed discharging at Port Neches and sailed Monday afternoon for the return trip to Mexico.

Coming down from the Magnolia Petroleum company's Beaumont terminals, the British tanker Nassa stopped at the Gulf Refining company terminals in Port Arthur for bunker fuel, sailing today for ports in France. The tanker will top off at Sabine, as will the British tanker Satanta, from Magpeteo, and the Italian tanker Rosario, from Beaumont.

The only arrival at a late hour today was the Spanish tanker Gobeo, which was reported due in Port Arthur Monday from Key West, but failed to reach Sabine bar in time to enter. The Gobeo will load out at the Texas Company terminals here.

ISCHL, Austria, Oct. 14.—A woman's handbag was found recently in a local restaurant and, upon being opened, revealed 2,000,000 Austrian crowns, worth about $2800, along with two silver coffee spoons belonging to the restaurant and marked with its name.

The proprietor advertised for the owner, but in vain. It was apparent the woman in question preferred to lose the $2800 rather than acknowledge the pilfering of the spoons.

Great Pitching Duel
Two Popular Stars
Vance's Records
Kayoes Iron Man

Baseball fans will always regret the fact that Brooklyn failed to win the National League pennant of 1924.

Victory for Brooklyn would have offered the greatest pitching attraction in the history of the series.

Walter Johnson versus Dazzy Vance would undoubtedly have been the pitching selections for the opening game.

What a treat that would have been. The veteran speed-ball king of the American League pitted against the National League ace.

In some quarters the question has been raised as to whether it would have been good judgment to send Vance against Johnson had Brooklyn and Washington been the winners.

Perhaps not—but the desire to win the all-important first game would have found both managers depending on their one best bet.

Very often the world series games are drab because both teams insist on playing safety-first ball. In a short series it usually isn't wise to take chances. Get a run in the system usually adopted. Johnson versus Vance, however, would have been real dessert.

It is a rare occurrence to have two outstanding stars of the Johnson-Vance type in a big series, pitchers who have gained success through the same medium, a dazzling fast ball.

For that reason Brooklyn fans in particular, baseball fans in general, will regard the fact that Brooklyn just fell short of landing the National League pennant.

Vance, enjoying the greatest year of his career, has more or less monopolized the pitching feats of the year in the National League. The record is studied with pitching gems for "Dazzy."

Vance's best strikeout performance was 15. He also whiffed 14. In both cases the Chicago Cubs were the victims.

Four times he set 11 men down on strikes, once he got 10, while on seven occasions he had nine of the opposition take three healthy swings and return to the bench.

In the American League Johnson, with 14 strikeouts, was the leader. Johnson no longer goes in for the strikeout stuff, so his record in no way compares with that of Vance.

Who would have been returned the victor had Johnson and Vance met? Really it would be an undid act to even offer an opinion. That question will go down in baseball as one of the unsolved mysteries of the game.

During his football career at Michigan, Ernie Vick, who was an All-America selection for center, was known as the iron man of the gridiron.

One of the most active players on the field, in every scrimmage, making as many tackles as his hands, Vick never suffered injury.

The story is that time was never once taken out for him, that he never lost a minute of play. Vick seemed immune from injury.

Vick starred in baseball as well as football. Graduating from Michigan, a national professional baseball and a fine pitcher.

So one for a minute considers baseball nearly so rough and dangerous as football, yet Vick has often been injured on the diamond.

Near the close of the past season he suffered a broken jaw as the result of a pitched ball. Yet the same jaw stood up under many a gridiron grueling.

An old tobacco secret

A new richness
from an old-time process

Made for pipes—cut for pipes
—packed sensibly to save money

NOW it can be told. Three years ago we decided to revive a famous old secret method of mellowing tobacco—"Wellman's Method", it was called.

For three years we have been quietly trying it out—we, and about a quarter-million shrewd pipe-smokers who discovered it for themselves.

No whirlwind campaigns, no "special offers", no extravagant claims; Granger Rough Cut has made good on its taste alone. There could be no better proof of its quality.

Now we are ready to "tell the world".

An extraordinary pipe tobacco. "Wellman's Method"—now ours exclusively—not only mellows tobacco, but "rounds it out"—gives it a new taste, richer and milder.

There's no other method like it, nor any other tobacco like Granger.

And not only differently mellowed, but cut differently—cut for pipes. The Rough Cut burns more slowly, hence smokes cooler—and a pipe-load lasts nearly twice as long.

And finally—notice the package.

If Granger Rough Cut were packed in fancy lithographed tins, it would cost 15 cents.

But wrapped in smart heavy foil, you get this fuller, longer, cooler smoke at a third less cost. Foil instead of costly tin—hence the price.

Too good to be true? Ask any man who has tried it. Better yet—get out your pipe!

10¢

Granger Rough Cut

A Pointer on Tobacco—

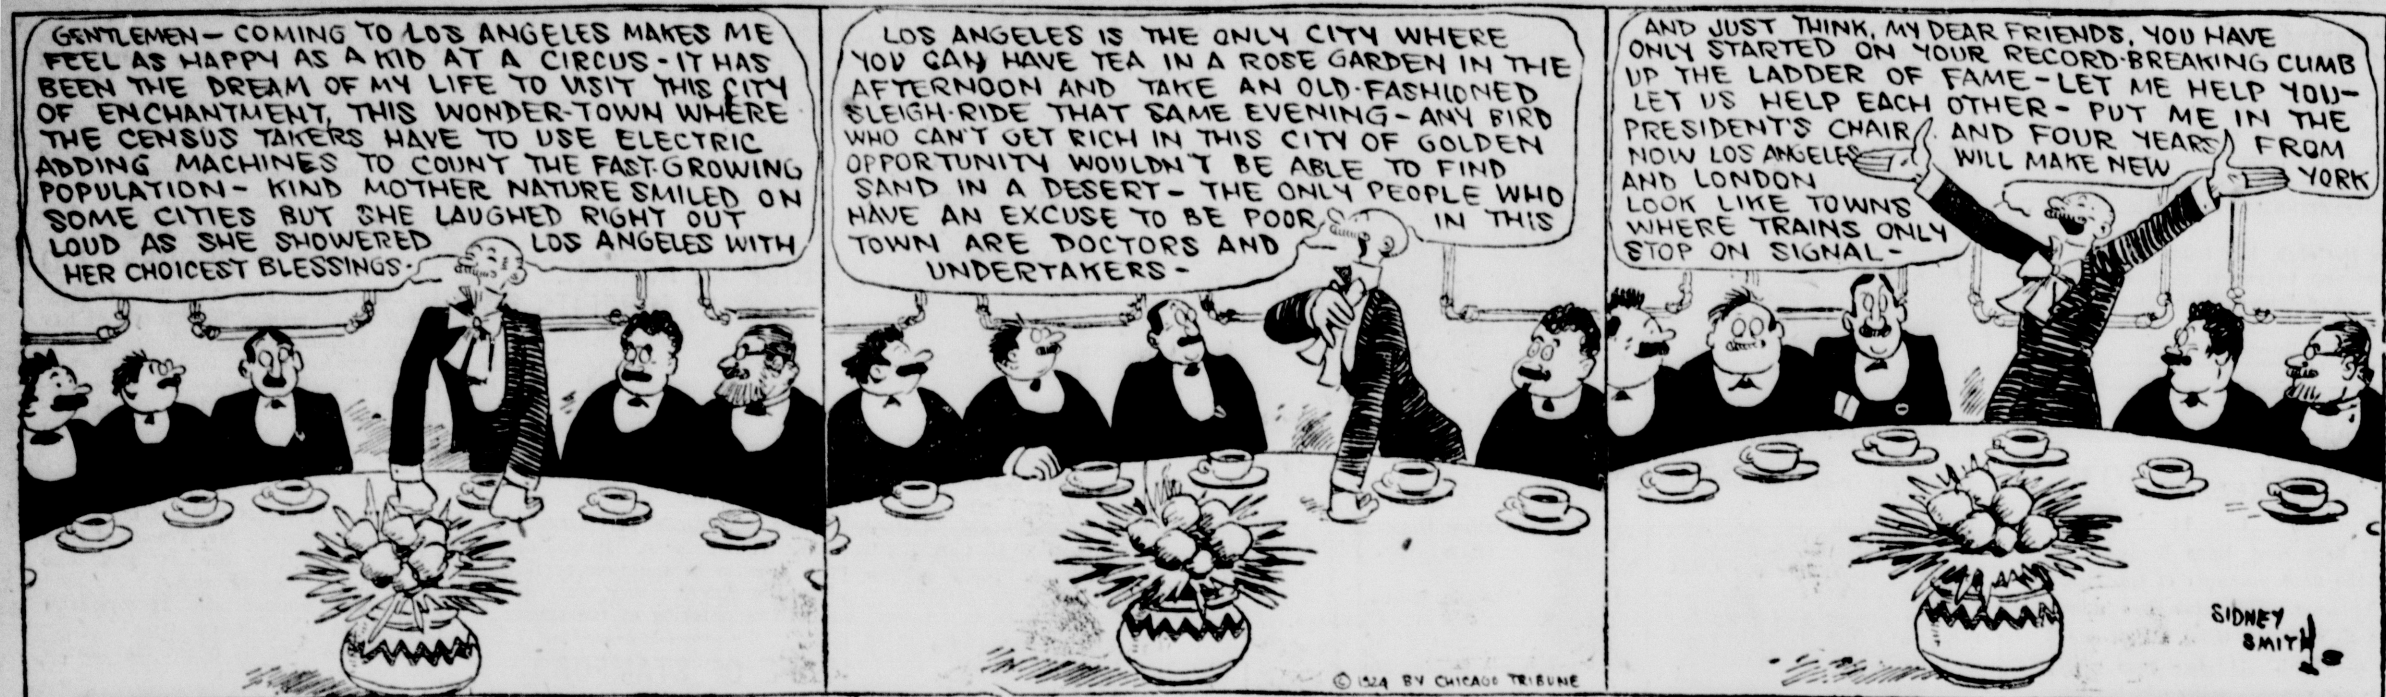

The slower a tobacco burns, the cooler it smokes. Also the longer it lasts. This slow burning is due to the "cut". Granger is "rough cut" to "cut" smoke slow and cool—cut for pipes, smoke slow and cool—cut for pipes, not cigarettes. And Wellman's famous old secret method produces richer fragrance and taste.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 18—THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

"How d' do!" said Captain Pennywinkle riding up on his sea horse.

The Dream Maker Man and the Sand Man and the Moon were waiting for the Twins to come back from the star called Jupiter at the other end of the Milky Way. Pretty soon they heard the night mare's hoofs going club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub. And in about two minutes the Twins arrived. "Do hurry!" cried the Moon Man. "I've got a cramp in my foot trying to hold the moon back." "Did you get the sleepy sand?" called the Sand Man anxiously. "Yes!" said Nick holding up the sack. "Hooray! Little owls and bats!" exclaimed the Sand Man doing a back somersault in his delight. "You are not a minute too soon! It's moonup on the earth this second. Hear that sound? It's the kiddies yawning." Then they dived right into the waves and presently they found themselves at the bottom of the sea. "How d' do!" said Captain Pennywinkle riding up on his sea-horse. "I am the sea fairy and look after all the Wiggles, as the sea people are called. What can I do for you?" "I am the Sand Man and I lost my bag of sand just now and it rolled down here into the sea some place. Did you see it?" Captain Pennywinkle laughed. "Looking for sand at the bottom of the sea?" he said. "Is like looking for a leaf in the forest. There's nothing else but, excuse my grammar. But I'll tell all my mermaids and sea-sprites to help you. It must be here somewhere." He blew a little whistle and all sorts of odd Wiggles came crawling up as fast as they knew how. CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

SCHOOLS OF 200 YEARS AGO. Some children think their school work is too hard. If they had gone to school 200 years ago, they would have had much more to complain about. Sadly enough, very few girls of those times had a chance to get any schooling at all. They had to stay at home and be content to learn a little from the grown folks. It was unusual for any woman to have very much knowledge. Boys were somewhat better off, but only a small percentage ever learned to read or write—perhaps only five out of a hundred. The boys who did go to school had a hard time of it. They were beaten by their teachers when they made mistakes. The studies were not interesting. The main thing was to learn Latin. It was driven into their heads by constant drill. In many schools it was a custom for boys to write a composition in Latin every week. After learning Latin some boys had to quit school. Others entered the main universities in England, were Oxford and Cambridge. There were four universities in Scotland and one in Ireland. Italy had about a dozen. France and Germany had most of all. Sometimes groups of students would leave one town and go to another. Then they would start a new university. Cities were glad to have them come. One Italian city tried to coax students away from Padua. It promised to lend them money at less than the usual rates. It said they would not be charged too much for their food. Some of the students thought these promises were very good and left Padua. Many college teachers were in the habit of reading their lectures to the students. No doubt this was tiresome at times. A rule was made at one place against students "shouting or whistling" while the professor was reading. This rule also forbade students to throw stones in the lecture hall. Most of the studying at college was about religion, law and medicine.

ANTON LANG SCORES VISIT TO AMERICA

MUNICH, Oct. 14.—Anton Lang, the famous Christ actor of Oberammergau, and his companions on the recent visit of these village players to the United States, have not been given a very warm welcome by their townsfolk. There is criticism of the small amount of money brought back as the result of the trip, arranged originally to raise funds for the needy ones of the community, and the proposal that any of the money be used to construct a monument commemorating the visit has been assailed, according to a dispatch to the Weser Zeitung.

STORM BARS
NAVAL FLIGHT

Shenandoah Again Post-
pones Return Trip

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 14.—Another warning that a severe storm is sweeping down from the north caused postponement again today of the San Diego to Seattle flight of the navy dirigible Shenandoah.

Following a conference with Rear
Admiral Moffett, commander Zachary Sawden, said San Francisco weather officials had informed him storms were moving directly over the Shenandoah's course through Oregon and Washington.

The Shenandoah is in readiness to sail, Landsdowne said.

Vessels Warned of
Gulf Tropical Storm

While no reports have been received from the vicinity of the tropical disturbance in the Gulf of Mexico since Sunday night, caution is still advised for vessels bound in the vicinity of where the storm is believed to be central, according to a message from Washington, received by Ernest Carson, U. S. weather bureau meteorologist in charge of the station here, today.

The disturbance is probably central between latitude 24 and 26 degrees, north, and longitude 94 or 95 degrees, west, the message stated.
Because of the high pressure area over Port Arthur and this section of the Gulf coast, the storm will move off toward the westward, and not come near this section, Carson said.

Special Train Service
To Pt. Arthur Fair

Port Arthurians having relatives and friends between Nacogdoches and Beaumont who want to attend the First Annual Port Arthur Fair, opening today, might advise them that they can take advantage of the special train service operated over the Southern Pacific between Beaumont and Dallas to come to Port Arthur, George Weddell, agent for the Southern Pacific here, said today.

A special southbound train arrives at Beaumont at 7:10 a. m. daily, and returning northbound for Dallas, leaves Beaumont at 9:30 p. m., making it possible for residents along the line to come into Port Arthur for the entire day and return home the same night, Weddell said. The round trip fare into Port Arthur over the Southern Pacific is a fare and one-half.

It's Easy to Make Your Own Halloween Outfit

No matter how inexpertly you may make a needle and thread you can fashion a costume for yourself that will be quite appropriate for a Halloween party.

Or if you wish to have a costume made, there is no end to the ideas that can be carried out effectively for such an occasion.

But civilian clothes are entirely out of keeping with the spirit of Halloween and to attend parties in smart dress attire only detracts from the merriment that such an occasion calls for.

The ever-present Halloween black cat and witch, floral gowns or a vegetable one, if you prefer to go as a turnip instead of a rose, simple costumes of yellow or orange, decorated with black figures pasted or sewed on at intervals, are always effective and easy to obtain.

Frog Costume
A frog costume is unusual and distinctive. It may be made of cambric, chambray, sateen, satinette or poplin. This costume is suitable for adults, misses and juveniles.

Witches' costumes are always seen at fancy-dress occasions. A 36-inch bust requires 3 3/4 yards of 36-inch sateen. The lower edge measures 2 1/2 yards and can be worn by all.

A Pierrette costume is pretty for women, misses and juveniles of 26 to 40 bust. Thirty-six bust requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch figured silk, 1 1/4 yards 40-inch organza for ruffles, etc., 5-8 yard of 40-inch satin for sash and top of hat and 5-8 yard 36-inch satin for camisole.

The costume as can be seen in the accompanying drawing, is of peg-topped effect at the waist, tapering down to form to the ankle.

One of the simplest methods is to take an old slip or foundation made of cloth and then build on it an entirely new creation of tulle, crepe or cheesecloth.

Decorated crepe paper, fringed and arranged about the neck and from the waist, gives a good copy of the Hawaiian dancer's costume.

Then there is the rompers costume,
a Gypsy, fancy dress dancer, clown and many others into which you can build your ideas to something quite appropriate and charming.

FORCES UNITED
TO BEAT LABOR

Bitter British Battle Is Seen
Over Election

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Conservatives and Liberals have united to defeat labor in the forthcoming general election. Although no official admission of such an anti-socialist compact could be obtained from spokesmen for either of the older parties, the purpose was evident today.

In many constituencies, either the conservative or the liberal candidate has withdrawn—clearing the way for a straight fight against labor instead of a triangular contest which might end by giving the seat to the government party. The two older parties will do their utmost to prevent re-election of Prime Minister Mac Donald in his home constituency.

"WHEN A GIRL LOVES"

The power of music plays an important part in "When a Girl Loves."
The production is not merely dedicated to the cause of music. It's whole implication is bound up with Dreda's famous melody of "Souveni." An impressive example of this occurs in the scene where Count Michael, a Russian nobleman, thrown into prison after the revolution wins his way to freedom. The beauty of his voice moves even the hard-hearted official who arrests him.
He could kill a man without flinch-ing, but he could not kill the pure glory of that voice. So Michael goes free.

ENEMY OF MODERN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 14.—
Through the use of insulin in deal-dealt its greatest blow of modern times to the reaper death, medical experts attending the southwest annual clinic conference here today declared.

Present day medicine has armed

"The Woman on the Jury"

A woman revealing her own past, barring to the world a secret which robbed her of her good name and imperiled her future, all for the sake of another woman.

That is one of the dramatic situations in "The Woman on the Jury," which is at the Strand theatre.

Sylvia Breamer plays the part of the woman who braved the scorn of the world for another, Bessie Love playing the latter part. Both had been the victims of George Wayne (Lew Cody), a "cheater of women," who cast aside his conquests when he had tired of them. One of the women had taken the repulse calmly;
the other, facing a serious situation, had brought about a tragic climax to
